Greetings

When time, with gentle hand, shall weave
Her silken veil around the past;
Our college days shall longest cleave,
And fade from memories page the last.

What joys between thy covers rest,
Dear book; what smiles and gentle tears:—
Thy every page how richly blest
With stored up bliss for future years.

Introduction

THE Phoenix is the annual publication edited by the students of Cumberland University. Primarily this book is a reminiscence of the days and years spent within the walls of Old Cumberland and within the confines of dear Old Lebanon. If it fulfills that mission it has accomplished that for which it was designed. Read it, fellow student, and cherish it not as art nor as literature but as a souvenir of college days. We have tried to represent in picture and in story every department and phase of life as we live it while here. This must include mainly work, but it cannot ignore our social intercourse, our religious association, and our athletic combats.

We are privileged to portray one of the most successful years in all the illustrious history of Cumberland University. The attendance is unusually large and the student body ranks high in intellect and in moral standing. Twice the illustrious sons of Cumberland met Vanderbilt upon the basket ball floor and twice was Vandy stung. As spring approaches it is evident that we have the finest prospects in our history for baseball. Hence we chronicle a year of unprecedented happiness among the students, alumni and friends of Old Cumberland. We do not ask you to examine the merits of the book (or its lack of merit) but we ask you to gaze upon it and review it as a memento of bygone days which nothing else can so easily and truly recall. Our work is done, whether well or poorly, our readers must decide.

And now we send upon its mission another volume of "The Phoenix." Seven other members of this Phoenix family are already in existence and we plead for this one the same warm reception which has been awarded its predecessors.

Cumberland University

THE year 1842 was remarkable not only for its preservation of the continuity of time, but for its being the natal year of Cumberland University. Up to this year the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Bonn, Heidelberg, Gottingen, The Sarbonne and some others were attempting to do all the stunts of higher education for the world. They were too few, they were too weak. The cause of learning and progress were suffering. The dark ages were about to return. Cumberland University was born. And Lo, what a change.

Before the birth of Cumberland University, one in order to be heard by his best girl, had to sit down close to her, on the same sofa and perhaps in the same chair with her. But thanks be to the felicity of the times inaugurated after 1842, one can talk to his lovely Glycera a hundred, yea, a thousand miles away. Note the dull, gloomy gas lights before 1842, and the brilliant, magnificent electric lights of today, or rather of tonight. The few pyramids of Egypt were about the only objects the whole past could point to with pride as to height, but behold the many skyscrapers to be seen in our cities since 1842. To look down from their dizzy heights would give even Icarus or Daedalus vertigo. Croesus and Solomon have occupied the center of the stage in the past on account of their great wealth, but one of our millionaires could put both of these gentlemen, with all of their money, in his vest pocket and then have plenty of room left for his watch. Without specializing further, if the pictures of the world could be taken before and after 1842, there would be a veritable "before and after taking." Post hoc ergo propter hoc. The raison d'etre of Cumberland University can not, therefore, be doubted.

Like the majority of great things, however, she had a humble origin. She existed in an embryonic or potential state for sixteen years as Cumberland College at Princeton, Ky. Conspicuous among her many virtues has been her poverty. She has never been the favorite dumping ground for the stocks and bonds of multi-millionaires. To no alarming extent has "tainted money" found its way to her sacred vaults. Her endowment has consisted, in the main, of radiant optimism, salubrious atmosphere, and of the glory and learning of her numerous Alumni.

The present assets are buildings and endowment amounting to $300,000; five departments, Literary, Law, Engineering, Theological and Music; three Libraries; chemical, biological and physical laboratories; two victorious ball teams, a strong Faculty, a glorious past, an encouraging present, and a bright future.

A. H. Buchanan, LL. D.

Mathematics

On the 28th day of June, 1828, at Boonesboro, Ark., Andrew H. Buchanan first beheld the light with which he is now so familiar. Fresh from the backwoods and with only a heroic courage and an indomitable will to support him, he entered Cumberland University when twenty-one, to emerge therefrom four years later with two degrees, A. B. and C. E. His instructor in Mathematics was the scholarly and afterwards soldierly, General A. P. Stewart. Lincoln University later conferred upon him a LL. D. degree. Since 1869 he has been teaching Mathematics in Cumberland. For twenty years, during his vacations, he was employed in the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey where officially and publicly he received many compliments for accuracy. His work as a Topographical Engineer, during the war, under Gen. Jos. E. Johnston, was remarkably accurate and trustworthy. He uses his own text book in Trigonometry and is Dean of the Faculty.

W. D. McLaughlin, Ph. D.

Latin and Greek

William D. McLaughlin was born in Bessemer, Alabama, March 11, 1847. A rustic son of toil, he early evinced an inclination to absorb wisdom and resolved to win an education whatever the cost. Penniless and alone he made his way to Cumberland University and became a student. Since that eventful day he has earned three degrees; A. B., A. M., and Ph. D. In 1870 he was called back after having served throughout the war (much of the time in prison), and accepted the Chair of Latin and Greek, which he has honored from that day. A humorist of high order and a finished scholar, his class work is intensely interesting. Never is the hour dull, no matter how hard the lesson, or how homesick and blue the class. His trite sayings are on the tongues of every student who has ever recited to him. He occupies a warm spot in the heart of every one who knows him.

Miss Clara Earle

Modern Languages

Miss Clara Earle was born at Cane Hill, Ark., and is the daughter of Rev. F. R. Earle, a pioneer and highly respected minister of the Presbyterian Church. Her preparatory work was done at Cane Hill College. She took her A. B. degree from the University of Arkansas. She also did post-graduate work at the University of Chicago and spent a year studying in Europe at Sarbonne and the College de France. She traveled extensively in France, Italy and Spain. Her first teaching was done in Arkansas Cumberland College at Clarksville, Ark. Later she was called to her Alma Mater as a teacher. She was called to Cumberland in 1902 where she has since occupied the Chair of Modern Languages. Miss Earle lives for the students. Her constant study is to make them happy and to lend encouragement and sympathy. Her unselfish spirit is manifest to all who know her.

E. E. Weir, Ph. D.

J. S. Waterhouse, A. M.

C. H. Kimbrough, A. M.

E. E. Weir, Ph. D.

Philosophy

Edward Everett Weir was born at Ashbysburg, Ky., Oct. 15, 1854. He was educated principally in Cumberland University, receiving from it the degrees of A. B., A. M., and Ph. D. He began teaching in High Schools but his scholarship became too well known to allow him to remain there long, and he was called to his Alma Mater where he has occupied the chair of Philosophy since 1880. He helped to organize the Cumberland University Annex, which afterwards became the Lebanon College for Young Ladies, and has been its President for ten years. He is secretary of the Literary Faculty. Prof. Weir is a scholar of the profoundest type. His knowledge of the human mind and its attendant phenomena is such as but few possess, and has been acquired only by a life study. A persistent reader, a close observer, a logical thinker, and above all a lover of and a searcher after the truth; he is a most interesting and instructive conversationalist.

J. S. Waterhouse, A. M.

Natural Sciences

James Smartt Waterhouse was born on the 29th day of Dec. 1874, in Murray county. Ga. His early education was secured in Chattanooga and he entered Cumberland in 1894 graduating in 1897 receiving an A. B. degree. In 1899 he received his A. M. He also attended Chicago University, doing post graduate work. He began teaching in Auburn Seminary but was called to Cumberland in 1898, where he has since taught Natural Sciences. He is acting Registrar of Cumberland University and has been eminently successful in enlarging the student body. This year he is manager of the Dormitory and under him it is enjoying its most prosperous year. He is Faculty supervisor of athletics. He is a member of the American Chemical Society and also of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

C. H. Kimbrough, A. M.

English and English Literature

Charles Hulin Kimbrough was born in Alabama, but was educated in Texas and Tennessee. He was first a student in the University of Texas. He then entered Cumberland and received his A. B. degree in 1903 and A. M. in 1907. He did post-graduate work in the University of Chicago. Since his graduation in 1903 he has been teaching English and English Literature in his Alma Mater, and in the Lebanon College for Young Ladies. Prof. Kimbrough is manager of the Lyceum Course and much of the splendid success of this popular series of entertainments is due to his wise selection and management. He is also associated with Prof. Waterhouse in the Registrar's office where his ability is manifest. An earnest and devoted student of literature, he is fast forging to the front in the ranks of English scholars in the Southland. Success will surely crown his efforts. He is unmarried.

Nathan Green, LL. D.

University Chancellor and Dean of Law School

Born at Winchester, Tenn., Feb. 19, 1827, Nathan Green entered Cumberland when sixteen and received his A. B. degree at twenty. Two years later he was a LL. B. from the same institution and in 1873 Center College of Kentucky made him a LL. D. He began the practice of Law in Lebanon and continued successfully seven years, laying it aside to accept a Chair in the Law School in 1856. He still occupies that Chair and is Dean of the Law School. For twenty-two years he served Cumberland as Chancellor, resigning in favor of a younger man. He is now acting President, since the resignation of President Mitchell one year ago. He is a writer of note. "Sparks From a Backlog" is from his pen. A typical Southern gentleman, he combines simplicity with a sincere love of and admiration for the beautiful. He is a perfect gentleman, an eminent scholar and a rare character.

A. B. Martin, LL. D.

Law

Polished, affable, genial, just. A self-made man, yet without a superior. Born Dec. 9, 1836, at Trousdale's Ferry, Smith County, Tenn., without early advantages, Andrew Bennett Martin came to Lebanon when fifteen years of age, where by hard work and consistent application he procured a good literary education and the LL. B. degree from Cumberland in 1858. Lincoln University conferred the LL. D. degree upon him in 1893. He practiced law with eminent success for twenty years. During the war he served as an Adjutant General on the staff of Gen. Hatton until the latter's death, when he served under Dibrell, and later under Gen. Wheeler until the close of the war. He began teaching law in Cumberland in 1878, and has been President of the Board of Trustees since 1862. He was a delegate to two National Democratic Conventions. He wrote "History of a Lawsuit" which is now in its fourth edition and extremely popular.

For twenty years he was an able and successful evangelist, traveling twenty thousand miles in forty states. He witnessed twenty thousand conversions. Moody said of him that he was the greatest living Bible preacher. He is the author of "Truth Applied." In 1891 he traveled in Europe, Asia and Africa, expecting to visit the Holy Land, but was prevented by an outbreak of Asiatic cholera. During the World's Fair at Chicago he worked for six months with Moody in an evangelistic campaign. Rev. A. C. Dixon said that one hundred infidels were converted in Brooklyn by one of his sermons. He began teaching in Cumberland in 1903.

J. V. Stephens, D. D.

For twelve years he has been a member of the "Alliance of Reformed Churches throughout the world holding the Presbyterian System." He was a member of the "World's Parliament of Religions" held in Chicago during the World's Fair. He is stated Clerk of the Synod of Tennessee. He was called to the Chair of Church History and Church Polity in Cumberland in 1893,

C. H. Bell, D. D.

Claiborne Handy Bell was born in Mississippi, near Aberdeen. He took his A. B. degree in Cumberland University in 1863, and from the same institution, a few years later, received the degrees of A. M. and D. D. His Presbytery supported him as a missionary among the soldiers in the Civil War. Church which became a leading church in the denomination. Following this he was for fifteen years president of the Board of Missions of the C. P. Church. In 1906 Missouri Valley College honored him with the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Miss Edna Beard

Robert Paul Gise

Director

Robert Paul Gise is a native of Ohio. He studied music from early childhood under master teachers. After graduating with honors from an Eastern Conservatory he spent four years in Cincinnati with one of the foremost pianists of America, studying at the same time the pipe-organ with a pupil of the celebrated Guilman of Paris. Practically his whole life has been lived in a musical atmosphere. As a student and teacher he mingled in the musical environment of the great art centers and enjoyed their broadening influences. Five years of his life were spent in connection with Herr Eugene Feuchtinger, whom he succeeds in Cumberland. Prof. Gise has had thirteen years experience as a teacher in the North, East and South, and in every section his talent and attainments stand out prominently. He presides at the pipe-organ in the Presbyterian Church in Lebanon and is a large factor in the excellent musical features for which this church is noted.

Miss Edna Beard

Violin

Miss Edna Beard is a Lebanon girl, the accomplished daughter of Hon. E. E. Beard who stands as a leader in University and Church circles. Her leadership of the famous "Girl's Glee Club," for several years, has stamped her as an artist and leader with few equals and with no superiors in the South. Miss Beard has taught for several years in Lebanon and is favorably known to the musical public as a gifted performer and successful instructor. She spent the past year in special study with the most noted artists of New York, and had unusual advantages in the schools of public performance. She was highly favored with marked attention in the most exclusive music circles of New York City, and was recognized as an artist of unusual ability. Miss Beard has charge of the courses in violin, guitar and mandolin in Cumberland University. She has already taken high rank in her new position.

To Cumberland

O Cumberland, fair Cumberland,—
I may not crown thee queen of colleges.
Thou canst not boast supremacy in wealth,
Or fame, or years. Thou hast nor marbled walls,
Nor antique-statted halls, nor granite colonnades,
Nor campus dotted with ten thousand trees.
Meagre thy dowry, and thy teachers few,
Yet thou, like hardy peasant with rude implement,
Who strikes from out the virgin soil its wealth
Of flower and fruit, making the earth to blossom
As the rose,
Hast touched the hearts of thousands and quickened them
Into a new life great and wonderful.
From East and West, from North and South ascends
The incense of thy praise; and myriad lives
Whose service to our country and our God
Ranks aye with that of earth's immortal sons,
Rise up to call the blessed.
Out of the ashes of a civil strife
That blighted Southern hopes, thou, like that Phoenix
Chanted in antique rime, sprang purged and chastened
Hopeful of the new life of the new age
That dawned at Appomattox. And today
Thy consecrated toil enthrones thee peer,
By right of service, of sister institutions
Older and richer far.
O Cumberland, O alma mater,
Maker of men, mother of heroes,—
I salute thee.

Senior Class

Motto—Sich vorwärts und nicht hinter dich.

Colors—Blue and Gold.

Flower—Jonquil.

No more cuts, no more flunk!
No more grades always punk!
Exams are o'er; work all done,
The battle fought; laurels won.
Kindly blest are we by fate,
The happy Seniors nineteen eight!

KATHERINE MACE, Phoenix Representative

Early in the fall of 1904 the faculty discovered in the "remarkable Freshman Class" the symptoms of greatness that, in the Seniors of 1908 are fully developed. Yet all great men have the faults incident to their genius, and the Seniors of this year are no exception to this rule. I say this that those who aspire to become Seniors—and consequently great—may not feel so timid about trying it. The Seniors are great for several reasons. One is that they believe it so strongly themselves. Another is that several girls too young to know when they are bored to death also believe it. Any one desiring further proof should visit the Mutual Administration Society held each morning in the hall about the close of the second period.

The Senior class is typical of the cosmopolitan spirit of the student body of Cumberland University. Though it numbers but six, they represent interests varying from the Anti-Prohibition League to the Y. M. C. A., from the leading fraternities of the college world to the anti-frat. ring of East Main, from the near married to the confirmed bachelor, from the Calculus grind to the Byron enthusiasts, from the preacher to the engineer, from the athlete to the budding poet, from followers of Bryan to supporters of Roosevelt, yet the utmost harmony in politics prevails when the Senior co-ed is nominated for an office that means hard work.

And what of the Senior co-ed? Well no frat. is advertised on her shirt waist, nor are any "Please Remits" addressed to Pa for her dear sake, yet the Senior allows no one to bully her but himself and he gives her brotherly advice about Theologs. Likewise the Senior co-ed remains steadfastly platonic for she knows full well that, even were it not unconventional in Lebanon society to love more than one man at a time, all of them together are too broke to buy cheese to feed the rat in her pompadour, not to mention Lowney's for herself.

CHARLES ROSS ENDSLEY, P. K. A., Belfast, Tenn. Entered C. U. '02; Class Pres. '02-3; Dormitory Football Team '03; Class Pres. '03-4; Y. M. C. A.; Instructor in Greek and Latin in Brandon School '05-7; Pres. Tennis Club '07-8; Assistant in Latin and Greek in C. U. '07-8; Phoenix Staff '08; Pres. Literary Student Body '07-8; Class Liar '08; A. B. '08.

He is a living contradiction of the Holy Writ which says that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country, for does not the class of '08 point to him with pride and say: "Behold our star?" His strongest characteristic is his ability to talk fluently on any subject without knowing anything about it; but allow him his choice and he plunges into an enthusiastic account of "Me and Her."

He devotes his leisure time to the production of light literature and to whooping it up for Cumberland. From a scenic point of view he is not a success, but he is not in any way to blame, and that should not be held against him. There is a striking point of similarity between Endsley and the philosopher Kant. When Kant appeared on Philosophers Walk each afternoon the inhabitants of Koenigsberg knew that it was exactly half-past four. When Endsley is seen each afternoon headed toward the postoffice the citizens of West Main turn their clocks to 5:05.

LUCIEN RUBY, K. S., Madisonville, Ky. Entered Cumberland '05; Castle Heights Alumni Association; Cumberland Weekly Staff '07; Kentucky Club '08; President Senior Class '08; C. E. '08.

The L. C. girls call him "Dearie" but the fellows call him "Maud". Early in life he intended being a minister but, like Mr. Finney's turnip, he grew and he grew until he realized that a clergyman's salary would never be adequate to meet his tailor bills so he decided to be an engineer.

But there is more to Maud than mere avoirdupoise—he has an intellect that wrestles successfully with the knottiest problems of Calculus or that can produce a mustache on twelve hours notice. "Maud" is an optimist and takes life easy. In fact his only troubles are keeping awake in Philosophy class and getting shoes large enough.

The height of his ambition is to be mentioned every week in the Cumberland Weekly.

JAMES BROCK HAVRON, S. A. E., Whitwell, Tenn. Entered C. U. '04. Caruthers Society; Amasagas-sean Society; Y. M. C. A.; President "Hillie Billie Club;" Delegate to Asheville Student Conference '07; Weekly Staff '07; Vice Pres. Y. M. C. A. '08; Class Historian '08; A. B. '08.

James B. Havron hails from "Se-quatchie Valley" where, according to an eminent authority, "they don't know nothin'." But whatever may be his failings he is a gentleman and a Christian Scientist. He gets his religion from Mary Baker G. Eddy and his opinions from Elbert Hubbard. Throughout his college career Mr. Havron has been an honor student and a leader in all laudable student enterprises. But long after all else is forgotten his heroic conduct at the Dormitory fire will be remembered when he attempted to extinguish the blaze with a lighted lamp. His life stands for the qualities that make the personality of an ideal college man. Yet Jimmie is a paradox and a mystery even to himself. Faithful in friendship, fickle in love, generous to a fault, charitable toward the shortcomings of others, merciful toward his own. Who is it that can solve him?

J. A. CALLAN, Gaylesville, Ala. Caruthers Society; Football Squad '04-5; Entered C. U. '03; Y. M. C. A.; A. B. '08.

Callan has devoted himself to the pursuit of knowledge and wisdom and left the co-eds out. Yet he adores ladies. With this thorn in the flesh his steadfastness of purpose and stability of character are admirable, for in class he is an embodiment of our motto: "Semper praesens, semper paratus." He is engaged to the girl he left behind. Yet he never murmurs or repines for the excitement of an L. C. serenade or the uncertain favors of a Sans Souci queen. The only reason he isn't married is that there are a half dozen in the Senior class and he doesn't want to break up the assortment.

NICHOLAS TALMAGE LOWRY, P. K. A., Valley Head, Ala. Entered C. U. January, '05; Captain of Rooter Squad '06; Pres. Y. M. C. A. '07; Delegate to Asheville Student Conference '07; Basketball Varsity '06-8; Business Manager Cumberland Weekly '07-8; Caruthers; Manager Baseball Team '05; Amasagassean; Phoenix Staff '08; Secretary and Treasurer Senior Class '08; Treasurer Tennis Club '08; A. B. '08.

"Dear Nick" happened about twenty-one years ago somewhere in the pine-clad hills and persimmon groves of Alabama. From the very first the lad grew and prospered and needed only small doses of powder administered in a teaspoon to assist him toward his future career. Soon he learned to crawl in a peculiar crab-like manner, and in due course of time he came to Cumberland. Year by year he has won honors for himself until we think Nick is four-square, perfect on all sides. He is one of the five who have won for Cumberland the championship in basketball. Prof. Weir is indebted to him for some new ideas about Psychology. The walls of Caruthers vibrate with his eloquence, and the wholesome Christian life that he lives is an influence that is ennobling. Yet why is it that the Creator hath made his heart a stone? Co-ed echoes "why?"

KATHERINE MACE, Lebanon, Tenn. Vice Pres. Freshman Class; Pres. Student Body of School of Oratory '04; Pres. Delta Sigma '05; Vice Pres. Soph. Class '05; Dixie Club '05; C. W. Staff '06; Sec. & Treas. Castle Heights Alumni Association '07; C. W. Staff '08; Phoenix Rep. Senior Class '08; Assistant in German '03; A. B. '08.

Miss Mace is the only one girl of the Senior Class. Though a student of the School of Liberal Arts, she has a wealth of information on all subjects pertaining both to theology and law, having absorbed this by association with a few of the extra-super representatives of these departments. She has evolved from a Freshman with theological proclivities into a full orb'd Senior, optimistic, radiant, brilliant, and buoyant with strong leanings toward the legal profession. As a "trusty" and trustee of love affairs Miss Katherine has proved herself pre-eminently fitted and qualified on several occasions and has more times than one helped to cheer the cheerless and despondent of her class who occasionally take it seriously. She is orthodox, heterodox homogeneous, heterogeneous Campbellite and Christian all at once.

No student has received more honors from the student body. She is cosmopolitan, being a loyal Campbellite, Presbyterian at bottom, and Christian exparte. Miss Katherine is conversant with the scriptures, but thinks Edward W. Bok and his staff understand women better. In athletics she distinguished herself in her Junior year, making good on the varsity track team by outspinting a young divine noted for speed and endurance.

Coile, L. S., Lebanon, Tenn.—“Linny” did his preparatory work at Baker-Himel, Knoxville, and from there entered Tusculum College, where he ranked high as a student. He entered Cumberland in '07, and while here has been deservedly popular. He intends sometime to take an A. B. here and then—well, he says he has never thought seriously about what he would do. S. A. E.

Franks, W. D., Kenton, Tenn.—“W. D.” took his preparatory work at Kenton Institute, where he finished in '04 and entered Cumberland the same year. Since coming here he has been forced to stay out one year, recuperating from over-study, but is back again, and, luck favorable, will take his A. B. next year.

Caruthers, Y. M. C. A., Business Manager Cumberland Weekly '08.

Mace, B. M., Lebanon, Tenn.—“Beem” did his preparatory work (or, at least, says he did some) over at Castle Heights, where he completed his work in '05. He entered Cumberland the same year and, while here, has devoted most of what time he has not filled in with something else, to his studies. He is the athlete of the class, being Captain-elect basketball '08-

'09. He, too, is working for an A. B. Caruthers, Y. M. C. A., Business Manager Phoenix, S. A. E.

Parker, L. P., Gallatin, Tenn.—“Quannah” started his preparatory training at Gallatin Male Seminary and finished it up at Castle Heights in '05. He entered Cumberland the same year and while here has done a prodigious amount of work, but it has been mostly “elective” work to a certain teacher down the street. He thinks maybe he, too, can take an A. B. next year. Caruthers.

Reynolds, W. W., Mt. Vernon, Mo.—“Kid” did all of his ante-college work at Castle Heights and came to Cumberland direct from there in '05. He is the original concoctor and sole manufacturer of “Reynold’s Favorites,” the brands so well known to University students. He is working for an A. B., but refuses to tell when he thinks he will get it.

Seat, W. R., Lebanon, Tenn.—“Bill” is a Tennessean in all that the name implies. He did fine preparatory work at Castle Heights and entered Cumberland from there in '05. He has missed one year here, but declines emphatically to say one word about where he was or what he did. Some think he was acting as supreme high counsellor to the King of Siam. It’s an A. B. for him next. Caruthers, Y. M. C. A.

White, W. M., Auburn, Ky.—“Freshman” is the only “night rider” we have, but he is of the harmless sort. Did his preparatory work at Auburn Seminary and entered Cumberland in '05. He is the only really incorrigible society man we have and does the sporting for the whole class. Will take an A. B. next year.

Yes, we are only Juniors, but we are proud of it. While we are not as vain and boastful as Seniors, we are glad that we are not as verdant as Freshmen, nor do we claim to be as all-wise as the pompous Sophomore.

We rejoice, too, never again after this year will we have to approach with fear and trepidation an upper classman, but will ourselves exact that homage so justly due.

We are sadly deficient in one respect and we frankly admit our weakness. Not even one soulful, sentimental, gushing, giggling, gum-chewing co-ed is there among us. Truly we can make good one of our boasts, that we are the most “manly” class here.

The one distinguishing characteristic of the class is their great love for work. Duty has ever come before pleasure and although the task has at times seemed great, we have stuck to it and intend to stick to it until we reach the goal for which we have been striving. We realize too that as yet we have gleaned only a little from the great field of knowledge, but this we have tried to learn well.

We are looking forward pleasantly to another year’s work here and then we scatter, each to fight his own battles, but may we come out winners each and all.

Here’s to the Juniors!

POEM

To celebrate in martial measures grand
The mighty deeds of war on sea and land,
That shake the planet; or in lyric strain,
To pour forth some melodious refrain
Of soul-born music; such would trivial be,
When reckoned with the task imposed on me.
Such is the nature of my lofty theme
That any feeble words of mine would seem
But empty sounds, unsuited to proclaim
Immortal scions of immortal fame.
O muse, sweet singer of the heavenly throng,
Vouchsafe for once to me the gift of song.
Imbue my soul with that celestial fire
That wakes to ecstasy the living lyre,
And guide the flight of fancy as it soars,
For I must catalogue the Sophomores!
There's Henry Blackburn called "beautiful eyes."
The College girls he always spies.
When toward the Green house they are bound,
Then right beside them Henry is found,
And this fact proves his judgment sound.

Miss Hazel Henry brings a timely mirth
Into the heavy, classic atmosphere,
Which Sophomores create, and it is worth
Your money and your while simply to hear
Her rippling laughter, unmistakable and clear.

Delinquent fame, on some auspicious day
Will haste to place a wreath of mortal glory
Upon the head of "Bishop" Galloway,
Or celebrate his name in song and story.
Fame probably will find him in the laboratory.

Hist! let terrestrial noises all be stilled!
Behold one of that mystic company
Of learned scholars who are never filled,
But always craving more philosophy.
'Tis Daniel Moses Welch, from Soddy, Tennessee..

O great learned scholars have we, or to speak
Who surpasses the ancients in Latin and Greek.
Faithful in duty, at his post every week
Is J. W. Holmes. We call him, alas!
The Cincinnatus of Sophomore Class.

There is Scholar Maxwell, so silent and stern,
We imagine his greatest desire is to learn.

This worthy ambition not any should spurn.
For Maxwell we prophesy undying fame,
And soon 'mid the masters we'll search for his name.

Miss Mildred Bone, whose name we next present,
Hails from Kentucky, famous for its belles.
Upon her age 'tis useless to comment,
For like all other girls she never tells.
She's our esteemed poet, in which art she excels.

O handsome brother has this fair co-ed,
John W. called, of philosophic mien.
His ringlets are a rich, ripe, rare red,
Not easily forgotten, once they're seen.
They say his favorite anthem is "God save the Queen."

George Bouton first we introduce to you.
Like his great namesake George adores the truth.
This worthy son of Hatton avenue,
Is a somewhat retiring, studious youth,
He's fond of mathematics and co-eds forsooth.

From distant Texas Thomas Cravens came,
Thirsting for knowledge, bent on drinking deep
Of that Pierian Spring of classic fame
Wherein the learned love their brains to steep.
He wears the smile that won't come off, even in his sleep.

There is one of our class who in athletics shines,
And for him many a green laurel twines,
And not all his pleasure in strength he finds,
For at chemistry he steadily grinds.
'Tis Miller, for whom we've written these lines.

Then Peter Wilson with cheeks rosy and red
Would do much better without girls in his head.
If Greek and Latin he studied instead
Examinations he would not so much dread;
But, alas! 'twill not happen until he is dead.

One who combines in excellent degree
Substantial qualities of heart and head,
Such is Miss Dovie Martin, happily
So named, for, like a dove, it may be said
She soars, but not away—a typical co-ed.

Joe Orr,, the greatest English scholar-to-be.
A lover of Wordsworth's immortality.
He through the depths of Milton's verse can see;
Also through Shakespearian drama he readily speeds,
And we doubt not in future we'll hear from his deeds.

Then there is Watson, handsome and tall,
Captain, of the scrubs in basketball.
In the "Lone Star" State he received his call.
As he came to Cumberland in the fall,
Where he will finish his studies all.

Another is Williams, who is not very tall.
The greatest acrobat of them all.
Sometimes he gets a fearful fall;
But that to him is a matter small,
Because he bounces like a ball.

One of the brightest of our crowd
Is Marmaduke Harrison, to whom is allowed
The leader in chemistry, of which he is proud.
This honored position calls forth no rebuke;
But makes in all envy this great Marmaduke.

There's Miss Mary Owen Stratton, retiring and meek,
And she for each lesson will earnestly seek,
Except trigonometry, and there she is weak.
We hear that she loudly refused to take Greek;
But more of her we had better not speak.

Gill G. Harris, one of all earth's few
Immortal scholars, whose colossal track
Sinks deep into the sands of time—as true,
And valiant hero who has no lack.
His learning would, I fear, your senses rack.

As stern and dignified a Sophomore
As any member of that royal bunch
Is our illustrious friend, Oscar Ditmore.
The only time he hurries is for lunch.
So love-sick now he is, he can no more than munch.

Miss Mignon Myra Hall, with talent rich and rare,
Has won such fame in literary lines
That now all earth comes hasting to declare
That she all former genius far outshines,
And others far surpasses with her rhymes.

Last, but not least, Miss Foster will I treat,
Among the fairest of our fair co-eds;
Than her there's none more adorably sweet.
Her smile her fond admirer always dreads,
Because it throws him prostrate at her feet.

First and last; then all the time,
Rallying round our honored flag;
Every one of us in line,
Seldom do we tend to lag;
Here's to you, if you're doing fine,
Moving onward—not a "brag"—
All together, we are gwine,
Now! work! we're near the crag.

PROPHECY:—Hear ye the burden of the prophecy of the seer of the class of the department of theology.

Morpheus came upon me in the midst of the lecture and brought me out and set me down in the valley of future years, and it was full of dry bones. I looked and lo, they were very dry.

Then a voice said unto me, "Senior," can these bones live?" And then I answered and said, O Voice of the Future, thou knowest! Then he said, "Many years ago sawest thou them, and dry they were, dry they are now, and dry they shall ever be." A great sadness came over me.

There was a great noise in the valley, and a great commotion, and the sound thereof was like unto the rattling of dry bones.

Again the voice said unto me, "Knowest thou these?" I looked again and behold they were very dry, but I knew them not.

Then the voice said "Awake, O Senior, for, lo, these dry bones are they of whom thou art one, and among whom thou art."

I awoke and behold it was a dream and the Seniors were crowding about me and the lecturer was gone.

There's a faculty there with looks so rare,
Way down in Tennessee,
Which tried to float its little boat,
With perfect harmony.

But the Middlers wise, the Profs. surprise,
Way down in Tennessee,
And "cut" the school, the Profs. to fool,
And broke the harmony.

Oh! that faculty fair with patience rare,
Way down in Tennessee,
Heaped up our score with naughts galore,
And fix'd the harmony.

And then we Middlers blue, our rage did shew,
Way down in Tennessee,
We'll "cut" no more the dry old bore,
The dear old faculty.

The word "faculty" comes from the Latin "facilis," meaning easy.

Some Prophecy

J. O. Ashburn: A life of labor not a life of ease, a heart that's light, and not burdened with pride, a man that will be true with God and his guide.

J. C. Bigbee: The man that will be loved and believed in wherever he goes.

J. S. Hodges: This man is long and will be long on sermons, but will never force them on the market so as to create a sermon panic.

R. L. R. Jones will give new Theological names to all Theological terms: If a foul, he calls it a weakening of faith; if he strikes out, a falling from grace; if a good hit and the home base he makes, he calls that the final perseverance of saints.

G. G. Lewis: Man alone can perform the impossible; so in the future, if Lewis makes a preacher, do not be surprised.

C. W. Sample: "The wisest man could ask no more of fate," than to be simple, modest, manly and true. If in the future you wish this to find just sample—Sample.

J. A. Troxler: On stormy oceans or misty seas, he has a pilot that will safely guide to where all doubts will flee away and on this friend he will ever lean, for thus he has ever found him true to be.—Foster's Theology.

R. G. White will be a grumbling genius; he will ask foolish questions and expect wise answers.

J. H. Woodard will not seek diamonds or gold, but a treasure that is richer than both; a guardian angel to help him through life's toil.

The Middler Short Route

At first we all did number eight
Upon our way to heav'n,
But one fell out to lighten freight
Which left us only sev'n.

To heav'n we set our stubborn head
To satisfy our soul,
We landed to the north instead
Upon the frigid pole.

Can't we be carried to the skies
On airy beds of ease,
While others seek to win the prize
Upon their calloused knees?

(Warning to Juniors)

Don't try to gain the dizzy heights
By some hot air device,
For you will lose much sleep at nights
And land upon the ice.

Keep humble, would you upward go,
Keep on your little knees,
For there's a place on down below
Where people do not freeze.

History of Junior Class

So much of the history of the Junior Class as can be recorded certainly presents a variety of facts. We are "twelve". The same number, but by no means, the same kind of material as that which went to make up the personnel of our Lord's Disciples. Nine States and two continents are represented. Texas and Tennessee furnish two each; Kansas, Missouri, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama, Kentucky, Ohio, and Scotland furnish one each. There is also a variety of ages. There is variety of experience in ministerial work also, some just beginning, while others have been on the firing line for fifteen years. Our personal appearance is also varied, if not attractive. There are long and short men, lean and fat men; red-headed, black-headed and bald-headed men. Some are married and others wish to be. Our one point of resemblance is that we are an unpromising set in the estimation of the faculty. Ask Doctor Foster. Nevertheless, we have made some "footprints on the sands of time," and below a few are mentioned.

William Henry Baker—Born in Crocket, Texas, 1878. A. B. Trinity University, 1905. Ministerial candidate, 1898. Licensed, 1900. Ordained, 1903. Lebanon, Tennessee.

Walter Franklin Bradley—Born in Onega, Kansas, 1884. High School, Bethany, Mo. A. B. Missouri Valley College, 1907. For many years has been prominent in Y. M. C. A. work. Successful in one Intercollegiate and three Intersociety debates. Licensed, 1903. Bethany, Missouri.

Genica Corbett Bullock—Born in Crawford County, Mo., 1866. Preparatory course in Jacksboro Educational Institute, Jacksboro, Texas. B. S. Parson's College, 1893. Candidate, 1896. Licensed, 1897. Ordained, 1897. Qluster, Oklahoma.

Arthur B. Haynes—Born at Red Oak, Texas, 1876. A. B. Trinity University, 1902. Licensed, 1899. Ordained, 1900. Canyon City, Texas.

David MacQuilkin Harrison—Born at West Benhar Lanarkshire, Scotland, 1878. Hamilton High School, Scotland; Scranton Correspondence School, Scranton, Pa., Moosic, Pa.

T. Gilbert Henry—Born in Corinth, Miss., 1882. A. B. Cumberland University, 1907. Licensed, 1906. Lebanon, Tenn.

Frederick L. Hudson—Born at Gibson, Tenn., 1878. Bethel College, McKenzie, Tenn. A. B. Cumberland University, 1907. Business Manager of Cumberland Weekly, 1905-'06. Editor-in-Chief of same in 1908. Represented Cumberland University in State Intercollegiate Oratorical Contest, 1905. Licensed, 1902. Lebanon, Tennessee.

Thomas Eddelman McSpadden—Born at Barren Fork, Ark., 1880. Melbourne High School, Ark. Arkansas Cumberland College. Licensed, 1904. Ordained, 1906. Hartford, Arkansas.

Eugene Lovett Moore—Born at Orrville, Ala., 1871. Licensed, 1892. Ordained, 1894. Hillsboro, Texas.

Junior Verslets

The Foolish Junior

"Will you have some propaedeutic?"
Professor very kindly said.
"Not by all that's hermeneutic!"
And the junior shook his woolly head.

And ne'er a prolegomenon
Would that youngster accept;
At such a rare phenomenon
The doctor bowed his head and wept.

When in session pro renata
The Doctors met that very day,
Just what dread thing was there factata,
Not any man would dare to say.

But there reached that junior, sporty,
A gentle hint to pack and go;
Spelled with caps and dagesh forte,
And with notes in full below.

The Lawyers Awakening

It was a glorious speech. The words formed themselves into sentences, the sentences ranged themselves into paragraphs, and with crushing force the mighty torrent of logic and eloquence dashed upon the bewildered foe. His brain had never been so fertile, his tongue never so pliant, his spirit never so exuberant and masterful. It seemed as though the polish of Cicero and the force of Demosthenes, the fire of Henry and the terrible thunder of Webster had met at last in the ever dreamed of forensic power was his; a voice like fine music, an eye of flame, a Chesterfieldian gesture and a logic irresistible. The crowded court room leaned forward breathless, the jury were fascinated, even the judge could not retain his composure, and the little wiry clerk dropped his stubby pencil in open mouthed-admiration. And best of all She was there, the etruscan gold of her hair gleaming like an aureole in the stray sunbeam that seemed to linger delightedly around her head; her blue eyes aglow with the admiration that was the crowning glory of his splendid triumph. It was magnificent, unparalleled, fame, fortune, love, Paradise—and he so young. The roar of applause startled him. He moved uneasily and slowly sat erect. He rubbed his eyes and looked around the court h— no this was his room! There was the faded coverlet upon the table, and the hard, meaningless sentences of Fourth Kent leering at him through the dingy glow of the perishing grate fire. There his coat, collar and cuffs lying in a disheveled heap where they had tumbled off the rickety chair. Across the table he could hear the fitful gurgle of the ink trickling down the half-burned cigar with which he had evidently attempted to cork it. The chair hurt him decidedly, the cushion crumpled no doubt! He put down his hand to straighten it and pulled forth his beautiful derby that he had purchased yesterday in Nashville—was it yesterday? Ah, now he remembered there was his ague bottle—empty. Confound the ague! It so affected a fellow's head.

Somebody was pounding on the door. "Ten o'clock, sah! You'll miss your class, sah! He was wide awake now. The glorious court room had vanished. Fame, for him, the whole Paradisical glitter—it was nothing but a dream, and She, confound it and She, he remembered, bitterly had driven off up the Rome pike yesterday with a real lawyer, and he, by the prophet's beard, and he was only an embryonic Senior who had lost his way at Nashville and missed his breakfast.

Motto

True life is reaching up through all the years
To nobler, lovelier things:
'Tis lifting skyward as the flower,
To catch the sunlight and the shower,
Till slow unfolding to the croon
Of evening winds and streamlets rune,
It stands at last a perfect rose,
And spreads on every breeze that blows
The perfume of its gratitude;
Be this our motto then, "Be true,"—nor fate
Can then prevent our being truly great.

OUTWARD BOUND

Dedicated to the Law Class of 1903

We lie at anchor in the bay;
How fair the sun is shining
Upon Life's ocean, old and gray,
But dim the paths that lead away,
And to what goal no sage can say—
Too deep for man's divining.
From North and South, from East and West
We came on invitation,
To reap what other hands had sown
By many streams, with tear and moan,
True husbandmen of Truth, long flown,
And bear it through the Nation.
Swift have they flown, the happy days,
Our hearts will oft recall them;
The kindly face of many a friend
We'll follow to the journey's end,
And watch with joy the upward trend,
With tears should ill befall them.
And those gray heads and sunny hearts,
Who gave their benediction
Of wisdom through the toilsome house
Of "Lawsuit" days and darker "Powers",
And "Tunnels" where Plutonian showers
Most threatened life's eviction.
We pray for each the Writ of Peace
That passeth understanding,
And join with many an elder son
The flawless chorus of "well done"!
Long may its music outward run
Before they reach the landing.
But when the final transfer's made
Of that far-famed Black-acre,
And John at last has married Jane,
His tardiness oft caused us pain;
May the dear Judge for endless gain
Find it God's shining acre.
And in that choir where "chipping in"
Shall mar no glorious measure,
We hope to find our Doctor friend,
With wit and wisdom still to blend—
The grave and gay—the swift depend
To do the Master's pleasure.
The clock strikes out the hour—we turn
Where love and duty call us;
We must not tarry here too long,
Though sweet to mingle friendship's song,
For ours the task to right the wrong
Whatever ills befall us.
Still may we quit ourselves like men,
Each strong and true and tender;
And when we yield our "life estate"
Receive from our Great Advocate,
A home in "Fee" within the Gate,
From the Supreme Defender.

A Dedication

To Judge Nathan Green on the Presentation of a Loving Cup,
March 19, 1908

ROBERT BROWN.

Love is the vastest ocean; it enfolds
All continents, and sweeping outward far
Its waters sing on the eternal shore.
Love is the vastest ocean, and it holds
Our hearts as islands in its tender clasp,
And keeps them fresh; clothes them with beauty,
Fragrant flowers and fruits that never fail
To satisfy our longing.
Love is the golden atmosphere that woos
Our lives unto their noblest. Thou hast drawn,
True teacher, thou hast drawn to loftier life
By high example and by precept pure,
For not alone hast thou discoursed to us of law,
But still a finer spirit in your words
Spoke to our hearts, and moved us Godward.
Love is the breath of the eternal years
That turns to melody a mortal's speech.
And so you speak to us and move our hearts,
Because you love us—endless gain,
For love, like music, throbs responsively.
Great teacher, take our love! We can but love . . .
The sweet simplicity that makes you great;
The dear unconsciousness of princely mind;
The childlike bearing of a royal heart.
Dear teacher, keep our love! The love of those Whom thou hast led by quiet streams until
We've learned more fully what it means to live.
Keep through the years and time beyond the years;
And happily in spite of wanderings
The truth that thou hast taught us here to love
Shall draw thy children at the close of day
Around thy feet, as we to-night have sat
To hear thee bless us as the Patriarch:
Yea and we shall be blessed, and come through faith
To sit with thee beside the Larger Love.

Early in the history of the Law School the Moot Court was established, and during its history has been very ably presided over by our beloved teacher, Dr. A. B. Martin. In this Moot Court many of the ablest jurists of Tennessee and sister states have received their first training for their profession.

It is sincerely hoped and believed that many who are now its members, will go out into the world more fully prepared and more strongly equipped for the duties of their profession by having been its members—men who will achieve distinction in life and who will reflect honor upon our Moot Court and Law School.

Piano Graduates

Ethel Bouton

Miss Ethel Bouton is a native of Mississippi, although for the past five years her home has been in Lebanon. For three years she studied piano under Prof. Feuchtinger. Since then she has been a pupil of Prof. Gise. She completes the course in music this term, and will receive a diploma from the Conservatory. Miss Bouton has always been a sincere student, and her work reveals a most subtle appreciation of music.

Olive Gollithan

Miss Olive Gollithan graduated from the L. C. Y. L. in 1905, where she also finished the course in music. She continued the study of music at Ward's Seminary in Nashville. Later she became a student in the Conservatory under Prof. Gise. Miss Gollithan's work is worthy of the highest artistic merit. She will graduate from the Conservatory this term.

Voice

Voice culture is now regarded as part of an education, not only in singers but in speakers; on the platform and in social life. Shakespeare created a character who exclaimed, "I pray you mend your voices." And ever since we have been striving to mend them. Education is freedom—freedom from the bonds of ignorance. But see! we are crammed with facts and have no medium of communication. The voice is uncultivated and we hesitate to share with the eager listeners our finest thoughts. The world is waiting for free men—men who do not hesitate to respond to every good emotion through which God prompts them to speak and act, and here, alas! the voice is not free. They do not know how to use it, and all we know of the tumult of pent-up soul longing is a depth of yearning which looks out from far behind the eyes. Song is a part of life. He who tries to separate his work from the rhythm and beauty of life becomes a machine. Cumberland University will not be outdone by other institutions of learning. The School of Music is certainly progressing, and the voice department, under the direction of Prof. R. P. Gise, is rapidly growing. The class is now thoroughly enjoying the work. Prof. Gise starts the pupils on exercises for breathing and control of breath, then sustaining and sounding tones and many other complicated things. Then come songs, but (most sudden and unexpected to the pupil) a continuous return to exercises.

The class represents all grades of society—preachers, teachers, matrons, old maids (I mean bachelor girls), fair young damsels and youths. The soloists are not at all timid about singing before each other, and for the slightest word of praise the singer kindly repeats and redoubles his efforts, so that often students from the Theological and Literary departments are attracted toward the studio. One listener of a poetic temperament suddenly recalled a few lines from Shelby, and throwing back his head exclaimed—

"Teach me half the gladness that thy brain must know,
Such harmonious madness from my lips would flow,
The world should listen then, as I am listening now."

Then stealing quietly down stairs he finished writing a translation in Hebrew.

HUGH HALL

Miss Edna Beard has been the teacher of this department during the past year, and the music lovers are looking with great interest and favor upon her work, and her friends joy with her in her playing. The people do not hesitate to call on her for music, either of a social or sacred class, and she gives them all freely—classical, sentimental and terpsichorean music—music which appeals to the head, heart and feet, and sometimes to all three together.

Miss Beard's mode of procedure is almost strictly a feminine art. She inspires in her pupils first, interest, then enthusiasm; so that they love the fiddle and the bow, after this, as a natural consequence, work follows. The class is composed of workers of all ages—from the tiny tot to the mothers of tots.

Miss Beard is president of the Tuesday Morning Musical Club of Lebanon. This club was organized October, 1907, and is limited to twenty-seven active members. They meet once a month at the homes of the members. The meetings are full of musical interest, some of the chief features being the study of the lives of the composers, also current items. During this season the Club has studied Mendelssohn, Bethoven, Chopin, Schumann, Greig and McDowell. They are now preparing to study Italian, German and French operas. The Club is now working up a cantata, "The Lady of Shalott," to be given in April, with Prof. Gise as director. The Club is assisted by pupils of the voice department of the Conservatory.

Music Department

The Conservatory for the last two years under the direction of Prof. Robert Paul Gise has become widely known throughout the south and west. The class roll in Piano has been unusually large. There are eight states represented. The voice class also is doing excellent work.

During the past year Miss Edna Beard, violinist, has been the assistant in the Conservatory. Prof. Gise has the interest of each pupil at heart, inspiring them with a love for music. His work is based on thoroughness of fundamentals, and responsiveness and feeling in execution. The students are particularly in earnest, and have done some very artistic work. From the beginning of the study the beautiful is brought out. Even in the first simple melodies the young student is taught to be in perfect sympathy with and to participate in the emotion which prompted the composer.

The fact that work is play under the influence of order is demonstrated by the enjoyment which many of the pupils get from their practice, and the utter abandon and ease with which the members perform at the open class meetings.

Music is becoming an art more comprehensible to the listener through the careful training of those who interpret the classical compositions. As the poet paints us word pictures and pours forth his songs in the lyrics—so the musician—as Abt Voglar, while extemporizing on the organ, tells of the "Palace of music I reared, claiming each slave of the sound at a touch." Then the more subjective style which speaks out of the musicians words, giving here and there a rare glimpse of soul; and still another spontaneous burst of song without words. One unassuming lover of music of the day has said: "Whole events in history come down to me with the effect of an orchestra playing in the distance; single lives sometimes like a great solo." As for the people I know, or have known, some have the sound of wood, some the sound of brass, and some the sound of strings. On!7 so few, so very, very few, yield the perfect music of their kind. The brass a little too brassy; the wood a little too muffled; the strings, some of the strings, are invariably broken. I know a big man who is nothing but a big drum; and I know another whose whole existence has been a jig on a fiddle; and I know a shrill little fellow who is a fife; and I know a brassy girl who is a pair of cymbals; and once, once I knew an old maid who was a real living spinet. I even know another old maid who now is nothing but an old music book—long ago sung through, learned by heart and laid aside in a faded wrinkled binding, yellow paper stained by tears and haunted by an odor of rose petals crushed between the leaves of memory; a stiff collection of the rarest songs. Martin Luther—he was a cathedral organ. And so the whole past sounds, it is the music of the world. Plato! he was the music of the stars. The most that we can do is to begin a strain that will swell the general volume and last on after we have perished. Last, the poet, priest, philosopher and musician, Robert Browning, tells us—

"God has a few of us whom he whispers in the ear—
The rest may reason and welcome; 'tis we musicians know."

The Oratorical Association

This is an organization which is heard from once every year. Cumberland furnishes many orators, and to this end she has the Local Oratorical Association. This local organization is allied with the Tennessee Intercollegiate Oratorical Association and always sends eloquent and able men to the contest. This year Messrs. R. E. Robinson of the Theological Department, Clarence Stewart of the Literary Department, and A. E. Darnell of the Law Department, strove for the honor of representing Cumberland in the contest. The honor fell on Mr. Robinson.

This year the state contest will be held in Lebanon, and we are prepared to win.

The officers of the State Association are Prof. J. S. Waterhouse, Pres.; G. B. Jacobs, Sec.; J. S. Hodges, Treas.

Mr. F. L. Hudson is president of the local association.

Caruthers

THERE can be nothing of which Caruthers Literary Society may feel more proud than that she made the last year of her existence the most successful in all her history. For nearly twenty years "Old Caruthers" has done a great work in the University, and as she reached the end of her last year under her present name, she took on new life. Her work at no time throughout the year has fallen short of excellent, and as each Saturday night approached her loyal sons gathered into her halls like knights of "The Round Table," filled with a zeal to achieve glory only for "Old Caruthers."

From the very nature of the case, being the only society for the students of the academic department, "Caruthers" ranks easily as the leading society in the University. Her regular annual inter-society debates with the husky embryonic lawyers of the Philomathean, are the great events toward which all look forward with unusual interest and enthusiasm. Victory more often than defeat is the record of our history.

Out from under her beneficent and kindly influence there have gone men who now fill some of the highest offices and posts of distinction in our nation. And as this is our last time to pay a tribute to the living—one who lived and achieved her greatest success in the last year of her existence—may we all be inspired by those same great principles and ideals which have brought her great honor at the sunset of her life, to rise in the light of her example to higher heights, and, together with her alumni of days ago, let us sing to her memory this sweet southern song:

Lay her kindly 'neath the cedars
Where the whispering zephyrs blow;
Let her rest beside that leader
From whose name her fame did flow.

Lay her gently 'neath the cedars
In the classic soil of Lebanon;
Be that sacred spot her pillow
'Neath the warm sweet southern sun.

Caruthers Literary Society
(Now the Amasagassean)

History of Amasagassean Society

Amasagassean history dates back to 1837, when a society, under that name—the name presumably of French derivation, meaning “wisdom-loving”,—was established by students of Cumberland College, Princeton, Ky. In 1842 the College was removed to Lebanon—although there were some Princeton people who did not think so—and became Cumberland University. The membership of the Amasagassean came with the college, and the society organization was continued, it being a source of natural pride that the society was older than the University itself.

In 1848 the Amasagassean obtained a State charter and its permanence was thus placed beyond peradventure. It weathered the great war, yet entered upon a period of suspended animation in 1890. With its long and honored record, it had won the sincere and lasting affection of many of its old members, so that its revival in 1908 was the realization of hopes long entertained by many of its alumni. At the called meeting held for the purpose of receiving into the Amasagassean the entire membership of the Caruthers Society, the chair was occupied by Judge Nathan Green, who had been one of its incorporators 60 years before.

The legends of old times in the Amasagassean are many. Weapons have been drawn and blood has flowed in its quarrels. But that was long ago. It goes forward now, with new and abundant life, toward brightest prospects.

Some Facts

Before the days of Graphophones the Huerethelian Society was organized for the purpose of coaching and helping one another in the art of effective delivery. How well it has fulfilled this mission is seen in its victorious representative to the Inter-Society Oratorical, March, 12, 1908. So suspicious are other Literary Societies becoming of the vitalizing atmosphere enveloping our hall that they are taking new quarters and as near us as possible. In the future, the Cumberland University preacher boys that are called to the highest and most sacred ecclesiastical positions will have the words HEURETHELIAN SOCIETY in frame just over their office doors. If any of the Cumberland University preachers have regrets in heaven, that they would not become a member of this Society will be chief of all their regrets. But no members of this Society will have lamentations in heaven except those few who had to be dunned and sued for dues.

PHILOMATHEANS

The Philomathean Society

This Society was organized January 31, 1848, with eleven charter members. It is an incorporated body, as are its sisters, the Heurethelian and Amasagassean. It is the most exclusive Society in the University accepting Law Students only as members. Its main object is to develop the embryonic orator into the finished product and to transform the crude legislator into a real, live, up-to-date parliamentarian. But there is another object which excites much more enthusiasm and energy, (viz.) electioneering. Indeed the expression "Philomathean Election Night" has for years been synonymous with political chicanery of every sort and with all the hard feelings which are attendant thereto. This year has proved no exception to the rule.

Caruthers-Philomathean Debate

The Caruthers-Philomathean debate has become an annual affair of more than passing interest in Cumberland literary society work. It occurred this year at Caruthers Hall, before an enthusiastic audience, composed mainly of members of the two societies. The general good feeling of the evening took practical shape in college yells and cheers for the opposing representatives of the two societies.

Caruthers was ably represented by Messrs. F. L. Hudson and J. W. Holmes; while the Philomathean's standards were nobly defended by Messrs. E. W. Brockman and E. J. Nicholson. All four of the boys rendered most creditable speeches, but the judges were of the opinion that the Philomathean had the better of the tussle. They received the unanimous decision of the judges, Dr. S. A. Coile, Rev. W. H. Doss, and the Hon. W. S. Faulkner. Dr. F. K. Farr presided.

In the past four debates, including this one, Caruthers has won two and the Philomathean two. It was the Philomathean's turn to win this year and she rose to the occasion and did it right nobly. These debates are arranged for the purpose of promoting society work, and the encouragement of the spirit of debate, a result which we feel sure was accomplished in a very large measure by this year's joint meeting. A splendid feeling of harmony prevailed throughout the entire evening as well as a healthy society loyalty.

This year's question was: "Resolved,, That the Present Tendency Toward Centralization of Government is Detrimental to the Best Interests of the People."

Y. M. C. A.

With Gen. A. P. Stewart as president, the first Y. M. V. A. ever organized in a southern school came into being in Cumberland University in 1856. Not until 1881, however, was it firmly established as one of the potent factors for religious influence in the University, since which time it has grown and kept pace with the great world-wide Y. M. C. A. movement in the Colleges and Universities of the Christian nations.

In the association the students are brought into a closer relationship; Christian fellowship is promoted and strong character formed. Young men are trained for christian service; and every influence possible is brought to bear to lead students to Christ and to advance His kingdom.

All members of the law and literary departments are eligible to membership in our Association.

Last year the Association sent four of its members to Ashville, N. C. to the Southern Student Conference. This is one of the great privileges and opportunities of a life time for a student. These students take a ten day course in Bible study, and attend lectures and addresses by the foremost men in Christian work of the United States; and when in the fall, they come back to school they take up the Bible study classes in the University.

There is no influence in our University so potent as that of the

The object of the Y. W. C. A. is to develop the girls spiritually and to fit them for service in Christian Work. The work is carried on in a quiet, earnest manner and has proved to be a great uplift to the girls, both spiritually and in acquiring ability to conduct Christian services. One feature of the Y. W. C. A. is to stimulate interest in Missions by studying the different fields and their needs and progress. Bible Study is another important feature. The Association was greatly benefitted by the visit of the State Secretary, Miss Virginia Sinclair, who gave a series of interesting talks upon the work. Let us, as a local Association, do all in our power to fill the position, which the great spiritual awakening of the present shall make for us.

The Bible Circle

In 1886 the Bible Circle was organized for the systematic study of the Bible and kindred topics by the wives of ministerial students.

Since its inception it has had the benefit of the wise counsels of Mrs. C. H. Bell & Mrs. R. V. Foster, who were instrumental in its organization. In addition it now has the able assistance of Mrs. Pearson, Mrs. Stephens, Mrs. Bone and Mrs. Farr. This circle has been a source of inspiration and helpful suggestion to the great number of women who have been member during these 22 years. Among these are several foreign missionaries, a number of home missionaries and many busy wives of pastors in every section of our country.

Student Volunteer Band

WATCHWORD: The World for Christ.

The Volunteer Band was organized in this institution in April, 1903, with five members. Two of these, Messrs. Jenkins and Boydston, sailed for China, October 7, 1903. In 1904 Miss Mabel Martin was accepted by the board and sailed to China where she was married to Mr. Boydston. Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hogan, late members of our Band are now under appointment for Japan. Several others, of our Band in past years, are filling places acceptably in the home land but are ready to go when the Foreign Board calls for them.

The work of the present year has been led by Mr. Lauren E. Brubaker, who has been accepted by our Board of Missions as a Missionary to Korea.

The State Student Volunteer Convention met with us this year.

Object of Band

FELLOWSHIP: In prayer; in soul saving; in preparation for life work; in enlisting others for more active service for the Master.

Plans of Band

Holding weekly meetings; devotional and business.

Reading and circulating missionary literature.

Using all available means for intensifying the missionary spirit among our fellows.

The Y. M. C. A. Bible Study

A very important phase of the Young Men's Christian Association is the group Bible Study. That is, a few students gathered in a convenient room in an informal meeting to discuss previously prepared portions of Scripture. Throughout the schools and colleges of America this movement has rapidly advanced. From a small beginning it has reached the enormous total of fifty thousand. This increase of Bible students has not been due to a flourishing of the movement in an institution alone but to the untiring efforts of interested workers throughout the nation.

Cumberland University has not failed to keep abreast with this great onward movement. During the year thirty-five have been lined up in special courses of Bible study. This number was divided into four classes, as follows: R. L. R. Jones, leader; G. G. Harris, J. F. Odle, J. H. Wallace, C. A. Hunter, E. C. Tate, R. C. Paxton, T. R. Jacobs, and Mr. Black. G. F. Burns, leader; W. R. Seat, Joe Orr, H. H. McClanahan, H. Culbertson, D. M. Galloway, E. W. Brockman, Mr. Toller, and Joe Holmes. J. B. Harron, leader; E. P. Conwell, F. D. Conwell, J. F. Murphy, K. Sparks, A. E. Darnell, Bibb Jacobs, and C. H. Massengill. C. V. Brown, leader; N. T. Lowry, W. D. Franks, J. H. Johnson, E. L. Stockton, J. E. Walker, R. C. Hutchisson, H. Utley, and R. W. Faulk. Excellent work has been done in each of these classes and valuable results has been the outcome.

We make no apology for offering these courses of Bible study to the students. Neither do we think that any one can offer a plausible excuse for not taking up one of them.

The purposes of this Bible Study are:

To develop a stalwart Christian character;

To foster the Spiritual life;

To secure the daily study of the Bible in a logical way;

To arouse a more sympathetic and appreciative spirit among the students;

And to implant in the student's mind the principles and teachings of Jesus Christ so forcibly that they will crystallize into true character.

The season opened this year under auspicious circumstances, foreboding that Cumberland would put out a winner in baseball as well as in basketball.

Although only two of last years men were on hand, the first call saw many representatives from all departments report as candidates for the maroon suits. Coach Clark, with his good eye for a ball player, soon picked the most promising. This bunch with but two weeks practice tied a strong professional team in as hard fought and pretty a game as will likely be seen soon on the local diamond. Under this energetic, gentlemanly coaching and with the bold leadership of our Captain, it is safe to predict that the 1908 team will make a splendid showing.

Our basket ball team has won not a few distinctions this year, which place them in a position worthy of special praise and honor. We take pride in mentioning the capture of the Southern College Championship, won once against many strong candidates and among them, our old opponent Vandy, who suffered defeat, in two fierce contests. It is to the team's credit that every game was won in which every regular man participated and that not a single defeat was suffered on our home floor.

This five bears the distinction of being a very cosmopolitan team. All three departments of University are represented as well as each man having a different life profession. Lawyer, Preacher, Doctor, Teacher and Engineer. Also they have the singular honor in being "cute", according to the designation of a co-ed.

With a record such as this, and with the absence of football, the great indoor game promises increased interest each season.

B. M. Mace was selected as Captain for 1908-09.

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity owes its foundation to Noble Leslie DeVote, first victim of our great civil war. The first chapter was founded by him at the University of Alabama on March 9, 1856. Today Sigma Alpha Epsilon boasts of more men in "Who is Who in America" than any other fraternity. Its active chapters number 70. These chapters are located in our foremost institutions and have an alumni of over 12,000. Among these are ex-President McKinley, Hon. W. L. Wilson. Judge J. M. Dickinson, Hon. Howry, of the United States Court of Claims, and ex-Governor Beckham, of Kentucky. Tennessee Lambda is in excellent condition today and her future is still brighter. Her men are engaged most prominently in every phase of her University life.

On October 7, 1887, Theta Chapter of Kappa Sigma was founded by Franceway C. Stratton, the present cashier of the Lebanon National Bank, with the aid of other members of Kappa Chapter, at Vanderbilt. It has furnished to the University four professors, and to the Fraternity the highest presiding officer and an editor of its magazine The Caduceus. In athletics and other phases of University life, it has ample causes to rejoice over the achievements of its sons.

Kappa Sigma, as a national, ranks as the most national of fraternities. It has seventy-six active chapters, (five more than any other fraternity,) fifty-two alumni chapters, and is represented in thirty-four states and the District of Columbia, (covering five more states than any other fraternity in the United States.)

We are loyal sons of the great Lone Star State and are proud of our heritage. We conscientiously believe that Texas is the greatest state in the Union. With an area of 265,785 square miles, and a distance of more than 800 miles from its eastern to its western border, and of nearly 800 miles from its northern boundary to the Gulf, it could easily hold in its lap a half dozen ordinary states. It has all kinds of country and all kinds of people.

Thirteen are we, and although unlucky from number we seem.

If tested, we will prove to be the pure cream.

There is Robinson R. E.—Remarkable Elf

And Hodges J. S.—Slim Jimmy himself.

There is Means J. T.—June (Two) lips so sweet,

And Baker W. H.—Wonderful Head, hard to beat.

There is Hines C. C.—The Cunning Craftsman,

Dr. Bone W. P.—Wise Procurator, you know,

And Bullock C. C.—Coming Clergyman so slow.

There is Moore E. L.—Earnest Learner so keen,

O fair land whom fortune set
'Twixt two mighty rushing streams
That encompass thee about
Save on side to Sol unshut!
Thee hath nature greatly blest.
Thy enchanting woodland graves
Nymphs allure from wand'rings vain,
After earth the've compassed round,
Seeking for more comely spot
On thy gentle sloping plains
Fragrant flowers, sweetest known.
Spreading petals in the sun
Lade thy breeze with incense sweet
O fair land, West Tennessee.
Other lands may sing their praise,
Shanting on their desert air,
Yet there's not a peer to thee,

This organization was formed in order to promote the social life of some of its members who found home life rather dull and wished to rule once and awhile. Its popularity has grown until it has become necessary to raise the standard of membership. As all clubs are principally for a social purpose, so is this one. While we all have the "dearest wives in the world," yet the pleasure of our club cannot be surpassed. We have one of the finest suites of rooms in Lebanon, and the long evenings spent there will be the happiest memories of our college days. Just the nature of those evenings will ever be known only to the members, but we would not have you think that it was a prayermeeting. And if the proceedings of those never-to-be-forgotten night could be revealed many mysterious things would be brought to light. Only one evening in our charming quarters and any man is willing to endure the burdens of matrimony just to be a member. This accounts for our long list of candidates. And we feel sure, from the progress of many of them, that they will soon be full-fledged members. Much might be said in praise of this Club, but if it becomes more widely known we will be besieged by applications for membership and forced to do some explaining at home. But with three cheers for our dear wives we will drink deep and sing our songs of joy and long for the coming year when we shall again be in our Club rooms.

The members of this unapproachable set of human imitations hail from every unknown part of the globe. The fact that they are so fiery in complexion leads us to think that perhaps they came from that reputable place where it is too warm for comfort. The faculty has done wisely in scattering them out over town, this being done to lessen the chances of spontaneous combustion; to keep the roosters from crowing too much at night, and also to keep the fire department from going to the wrong place to put out the fire. The only real good these people have done the school and city is to reduce the coal bill, light our cigars, and preserve the fruit on frosty nights.

L. E. Brubaker is chief of this fire department. His hair is so red that it is burnt off in places and there is nothing left. He preaches and waves a streak of fire right before the faces of his hearers.

Harvey McClanahan is vice chief. He has made most of his expenses this year sleeping in orchards and gardens to keep the frost from biting the fruit.

Thomas E. McSpadden was once used for a fire poker. His hair is so red that he has to have his hats lined with sheet iron; then when he blushes sometimes his hat goes up in smoke.

John Bone holds a prominent position in this Club. Tradition tells us that he was belched up by a volcano in Kentucky and that he has not cooled off yet.

Thomas Means was banished from Texas because the people could not tell when it was night out there.

Jim Havron got yellow headed by gazing too long at a gold coin which was in the cash drawer of a bank.

Miss Annie Logan and Miss Katherine Hooker adorn this Club with a sunlight effulgence which makes the very stars jealous and regret their existence.

Welch has been offered fabulous prices to stand in tobacco stores to be used as a cigar lighter, but he refused because he thought people would get hot at him.

Shatz cannot succeed in business because the insurance companies refuse to insure his houses against fire.

Club Yell—Red-d-y, red-d-y, always red-d-y.

Motto—Look not upon the hair when it is red.

Flower—Washburn's Gold Medal.

Liar—It was impossible to decide which one was entitled to the office.

Colors—Red, mixed with brass and green.

Favorite Bird—Red headed woodpecker.

There are a lot of candidates for initiation into this Club, but they are under probation and may not be received because of their fading colors.

History of the Middle Tennessee Club of 1908

The history of the Middle Tennessee Club of 1907-8 is so important that it will soon be a text book and be taught in all public schools. Many wonderful feats of strength and deeds of wisdom have been accomplished by the various members of this club, but about the wisest thing they have ever done was to decide to come to Cumberland University. They seemed to realize that their position was an important one, that they were representing the best portion of the state, that they could not afford to let their record be lower than the past record of Old Middle Tennessee. Ever mindful of this they have made heroic efforts to succeed. In early youth they learned to climb from rock to rock, from hill to hill. When they, looking not unlike some varments that come from rocks or woods, came to this grand old institution, they continued to climb. But this club is made up of many different climbers. Some climb over rules and jump over things that really count; that is because they are Freshmen. But let us pass on for there is nothing new, under the sun, to say about a Freshman. Now there are others. The Sophomores imagine that their freshness is worn off. They climb from ignorance to bliss. Then come the vain Juniors, who climb from bliss to folly. But the Senior, alone, realizes what is to be done. He knows which direction he must go. He knows that every moment must count; so he climbs from folly to wisdom. But Middle Tennessee need not fear that this Club will bring dishonor upon her fair name. For every Club of the human family has to travel the same road, and experience alone will teach them the things that are really worth while.

We hail from Eastern lands
We're "Hilly-Billies" true;
We've hearts of love; we're firm as rock
And always friends to you.
The Club will keep an end in view,
An end of priceless worth,
To always keep in mind and heart
The land of native birth.

To give a history of each man
'Twould be outside my sphere;
So in the briefest way I can
I'll jot down points right here.

Oh, land of Eastern hills
I call you to the stand
Witness for us in noble thought
The life of every man.
Will you ascribe to us
The History of our men
Or shall we ever ignorant be
Of this our Club of ten?

Oh, Club of Eastern soil
I'll never silent be;
Yours is a history
Clothed in garb of mystery:
Ever true, ever brave
Ever kind and good and strong
May your flag in wavelets wave
Ere the sounding of the gong.

Life is one tumultuous sea
Ever raging far and wide
May you o'er the sounding lee
Be safely landed with the tide.

Only a glance at our roll will convince the most skeptical of the popularity of Cumberland University, and its world renown is the cause of this Club being here. Besides the states that are represented by our roll, the following states are represented in the University: Massachusetts, Montana, Iowa and New Mexico. These states sought admission to the Club but as the requirements for membership are so hard the above named states have not thus far qualified. But we feel sure that with the proper coaching they will soon gain admission.

The social features of this Club far surpass anything that has been given in the town during the whole year. The elaborate banquets that are given once a month have never been equaled in the history of Lebanon. For the description of these you will need only to turn to the Social Calendar.

The elections of the members to this Club is the most exciting time of the whole year, especially when the member is to be selected from a state having several representatives. But thus far we have succeeded in holding these elections without loss of life. We might speak at length upon the superior qualities and attainments of this Club, but feel it unnecessary as the Club speaks for itself. With the passing of this Club the glory of such organizations, and preferred social enjoyment passes from Lebanon.

Our Dormitory

Cumberland University Dormitory was first opened in Oct. 1903. It has therefore done service for five school years. Each succeeding year has added to the success of the institution and to the happiness and accommodation of its inmates. This year 75 people have made their homes in the Dormitory. In other words its capacity has been taxed all year. Prof. Waterhouse has had full charge with Mrs. Minnie G. Welch as matron and mother-in-chief. Under their efficient control the institution is closing its most successful year. It would be unjust to fail to mention the many kind and thoughtful acts of Mrs. Waterhouse, Mrs. White and Miss Earle and the happy, cheerful inspiration of "Little Sue." Without these four life would not be nearly so homelike and pleasant.

For the past nine years the Cumberland Weekly has been published by the students of the University. Its first editor was Phelps F. Darby, with W. L. Hamlin, Business Manager. Since its establishment, it has increased in its potency and influence, until now both students and Faculty, as well as Alumni, look to it as the voice of every phase of college life. It continues to stand for the best in Cumberland.

The present year has been an unusually successful one, under the editorship of E. P. Conwell, for the Fall term and F. L. Hudson for the Spring term.
